Job Description:

The Associate General Counsel is responsible for providing a high level of professional legal service by representing and advising the Arizona Board of Regents and Arizona State University on a broad range of legal matters in the higher education sector.

This position is within the ASU Office of General Counsel (OGC) transactional practice group, which concentrates on a variety of complex transactional matters including complex commercial transactions, business formation and structures, global and national operations, finance, including public finance and other legal matters. The group provides legal advice and counsel on state and federal laws, applicable regulations, and Arizona Board of Regents (ABOR) and ASU policies impacting the university; assists with the development of educational training programs for administrators, faculty, and staff; manages a significant and varied workload including working on multiple unrelated matters concurrently and completing complex projects both independently and with minimal direction; utilizes excellent judgment and discretion as well as exceptional integrity and research and communication skills.

This position interacts regularly with senior level administration and with state, local, and federal regulatory offices. Assignments will be based on university needs, candidate experience, and office workload.

For more information about the Office of General Counsel visit our web site at www.asu.edu/counsel (<http://www.asu.edu/counsel>).

Essential Duties

- Drafts, negotiates, and reviews agreements and other legal documents relating to the work of the transactional group for various University offices and departments.
- Provides legal counsel and prepares legal opinions and advice for administrative offices and academic units based on an analysis of applicable federal and state law and regulations, ABOR policies and University policies.
- Advises on regulatory compliance with federal and state laws, including those governing business transactions managed by the transactional group.
- Represents ASU in negotiations, administrative proceedings, and legal disputes.
- Researches and analyzes a wide variety of laws, regulations, legislation, legislative history and policies; studies proposed or existing legislation for implications to the University
- Assists in development and presents a variety of preventive law programs for the University.
- Collaborates with outside legal counsel on specialized matters as needed.
- Represents the Office of General Counsel at meetings and conferences, as required.
- Maintains effective working relationships with appropriate regulatory, legislative and other legal resources.
- Assumes other duties as may be assigned.

Desired Qualifications

- Evidence of a J.D. degree from an ABA accredited law school and six (6) years of experience as a practicing attorney with a focus in higher education, complex commercial transactions, business formation and structures, global and national operations, and/or public finance.
- Experience working in a diverse and complex, high volume environment.
- Experience in the active practice of law which is current and continuous and with a demonstrated ability to structure, negotiate, and draft complex agreements relevant to a complex and entrepreneurial public research university.
- Evidence of strong, effective verbal and written communication skills.
- Knowledge of legal issues affecting large public research universities, including regulatory compliance, contractual relations, and policy development.

Working Environment

- Work is performed in a standard office environment subject to prolonged periods of sitting and operation of computer equipment requiring keyboarding.
- Travel to other offices at the Tempe campus and other ASU campuses or locations is required.
- Some out-of-state and overnight travel is required.
